

PA502DE Introduction to Homiletics

Course Format

A twelve-week course consisting of on-line studies, on-line collaboration, weekly blog involvement.

Course Description

This course provides students with the foundations for Catholic preaching. As a general introduction, we will examine contemporary magisterial teaching on homiletics while also affording students the opportunity to prepare homilies which will be shared among participants for feedback. Particular emphasis will be given to the liturgical and sacramental context within which Catholic preaching takes place.

Goals of the Course

- To begin to articulate a "theology of preaching," a "theology for preaching," and "theology from preaching."
- To incorporate responsible methods of biblical interpretation for preaching.
- To consider the relationship of homiletics to other Catholic theological and pastoral sources.
- To situate the homily within its broader liturgical and sacramental context.

Learning Objectives

The course is designed to provide students with

- better understanding of the foundations of Catholic preaching;
- the opportunity to study official documents on Catholic preaching;
- an understanding of how preaching fits within the symbolic discourse of Catholic ritual, liturgy and sacrament;
